Carl Beeger, City Pioneer, Dies at Home

Former Town Trustee And Son of Ex-Chief Answers Summons

Carl Beeger, one of the owners of the Beeger Tanning Company and for nearly 40 years a prominent figure in Redwood City business and political life, died at his home on Eagle Hill at 8 a.m. on Wednesday. He was 56 years of age.

Mr. Beeger, who served Redwood City as city councilman for two terms ending in 1912, was stricken ill a year ago. He underwent an operation and was for three months in the hospital, but never recovered from his illness.

Born in Oakland June 28, 1879, Mr. Beeger was brought to Redwood City with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Beeger Sr., while an infant in arms.

Shortly afterwards, his father one-time fire chief here, established the tannery which since the elder Mr. Beeger's death in 1899 has been operated by the six Beeger children.

Carl Beeger attended Redwood City schools, but went to Germany native land of his father and mother, to attend college. He was graduated from the University of Freiberg, after which he returned to Redwood City, entering immediately into the tanning business.

In 1909 he was married in Los Angeles to Miss Lina Demouriez of Belmont, who predeceased him by six years.

Mr. Beeger was a member of the Masonic lodge and the local Kiwanis club. He was president of the service organization when stricken ill. He attended the Episcopal church.

Surviving relatives include Mr. Beeger's mother, Mrs. Mary Beeger, 533 Hopkins avenue; his brother, Henry Beeger, and four sisters, Mrs. Julia Ross, Mrs. Pauline Barneson, Miss Lulu Beeger and Miss Gertrude Beeger, all of Redwood City.

Funeral services will be held Friday at 2 p.m. from the Parmelee & Phillips (James Crowe Co.) parlors, with the Rev. Norman W. Pendleton officiating. Entombment will follow at Cypress Lawn Memorial Park.

Out of respect to his memory the Beeger tannery will be shut down Friday.

Winter Tourist Fares East Cut Heavily By S. P.

Important reductions in round-trip winter tourist and coach class fares from points in all California, Oregon, Nevada and Arizona to the midwest and east were announced today by Southern Pacific.

Winter excursion fares were inaugurated, according to F. S. McGinnis, vice president, because an increasing number of Pacific coast residents are choosing the winter months for their eastern vacations.

The new roundtrip winter tourist fare east is only 72 per cent of the regular all-year tourist rate, while the coach class fare is but 56 per cent, he said. The reductions are effective from November 11 until May 14, with a six month return privilege.

P. G. E. Head's Death Due to Heart Ailment

BERKELEY, Nov. 12 (UP)—An ailing heart and general debilities of advanced age today had ended the career of A. F. Hockenbeamer, president of the Pacific Gas and Electric Company, one of the west's largest utilities companies.

Hockenbeamer, who started as a messenger and janitor's helper at $15 a month, died at Alta Bates Sanitarium after a six weeks' illness. He was 64 years of age.

He had been president of the P. G. & E. since 1927. Well known in utilities circles of the nation, he recently was appointed consulting professor of public utility management at Stanford University.

SEAPORT GLORY OF PAST MAY YET BE RECAPTURED

[EDITORIAL]

There comes a period in the history of every city when it must take its bearings and set its course if it is not, like a derelict, to drift listlessly and uncertainly.

Is it to live forever in the memories of its past; to content itself with the boastings that it is the "oldest city of the peninsula"; that "here ships were launched in the lumber trades of the 50s," or that "15 vessels in a day set sail from Redwood City wharves"?

True, this is a fine background for Redwood City, something of the old days to be treasured. But the city cannot get ahead if it is to live forever in its past. It must take life, awaken to what it has lost, and prepare to assume its place with the progressive cities of California. It must ask itself, "What About Today?"

If it does not do so, it may lose everything that it has; be denied the progress and benefits that an out-voted city cannot hope to secure from ambitious and populous neighbors like Burlingame or San Mateo.

It will find, if it takes stock, that it has lost about as much activity as it has gained: that it has not been able to hold the industries and payrolls which established here in the hope of easy and cheap access to the sea.

It has been a pitifully long day since Redwood City won its last great enterprise. It is doubtful when it again will hear the good news. But the harbor holds the great promise that new life and new activity will be set in motion.

Someone asks, "Why is this time so opportune?" The answer is that now there is a chance to do the job cheaper than it can ever be done again. The federal government just now is in the business of financing worthwhile public undertakings. Now, too, capital is loosening up after those dreadfully lean years. Times are distinctly better and confidence is returning. Industries are branching out into the west and the programs that were halted are about to be carried out.

Will Redwood City share in the dawn of the new industrial era? Or will its ghost ships continue to sail into the ever darkening sunset of a once glorious past?

Lamson Is Refused Right to Appeal

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 12 (UP)—Federal Judge A. F. St. Sure today refused David Lamson, former Stanford University Press executive, permission to appeal to the United States Circuit Court from a ruling holding the federal government had no jurisdiction in the Lamson slaying trial.

The ruling was made by St. Sure last week in refusing to grant the Lamson forces a writ of habeas corpus cum causa which would have transferred the prisoner to federal jurisdiction from the Santa Clara county jail.

Belmont Unit On New Cut-Off Costs $83,662

Supervisors Endorse Attempt to Secure Union Pay Scale

Approval was given by the board of supervisors Tuesday to a 20-minute speed link connecting Redwood City with Half Moon Bay via the Ralston avenue cut-off, a unit of which, to cost $83,662, is expected to begin shortly.

Meanwhile, the board decided to send County Engineer Urban S. Marshall, WPA Coordinator William Hendricks and County Executive Walter Kellogg to San Francisco to confer with Assistant City Engineer Clyde Healy as to how San Francisco secured federal approval of union wages on relief projects.

Supervisor Albert Witt Jr., Colma, declaring that San Mateo county did not belong in any different category from San Francisco, insisted that union wages be paid, if possible, on relief work.

If Frank V. McLaughlin, California relief director, refuses to stand the extra cost, Witt suggested that San Mateo county go over his head in an appeal to Washington, D. C.

SPONSOR'S SHARE SMALL

The board, by resolution, also sought the federal government's cooperation in speeding relief projects by asking that McLaughlin be given authority to approve projects without going to Washington.

San Mateo county's contribution on the Ralston cut-off unit, according to Marshall and Hendricks, will be $20,669, of which $18,000 will represent equipment use, and $2,669 will be actual cash.

The unit approved by the board was for a .55 mile section from the Ralston avenue cut-off near the San Mateo County Relief Home easterly toward Belmont. The second unit of the road, on which the right of way is yet to be secured, will carry the new link into the Belmont City limits.

Heavy construction is required on this section, according to the engineers.

Supervisor Witt, pointing to the fact that the county's contribution on this project is but 3.2 per cent, said that former work was figured as high as 38 per cent to the sponsor.

179 GIVEN WPA JOBS

Marshall, in a progress report given to the board through Executive Walter Kellogg, reported that 179 men were put to work during the week on WPA projects. These included 50 men on the Woodside road, 30 at Memorial Park, 36 on the Jefferson avenue grading, and 53 on the San Francisquito project.

Other projects on which he is at work, according to Marshall, are the $5500 Hillside boulevard improvement, the $16,000 Mission road widening, and two Tunitas bridge jobs to cost $16,000.

Belmont District Continues Profit On Water System

(Special to The Tribune)

BELMONT, Nov. 13. — At the meeting of the Belmont County Water District last evening, the report of Auditor Herman Kohlmoos showed $190.57 was net income for operating the district's water system during the last three month's period.

Manager Elwood Curtis gave a superintendents and managers of superintendents' and managers' of water companies at San Diego. He recommended use of modern equipment as well as a more simplified system of keeping records.

In his monthly report he revealed there has been a gross profit of $642.98 for operating the water plant during October. He also pointed out that the gross profit for operation this year is more than that of the same period last year, mainly due to the district's up-to-date plant.

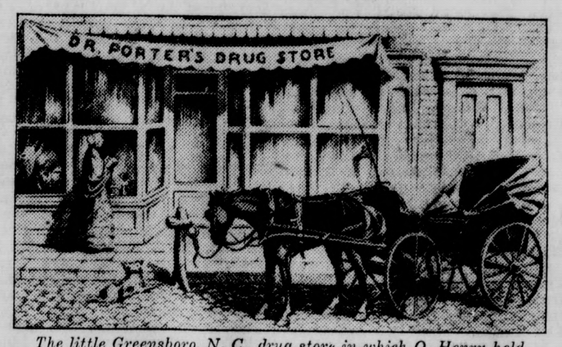
Two World-Famous Careers Started in This Drug Store

Pharmacists Won Wide Renown Under Names Not Their Own



The little Greensboro, N. C., drug store in which O. Henry held his first job and Lunsford Richardson started a career which was to become one of the romantic achievements of modern business.

The picturesque careers of two men whose work was to become known throughout the world, give a double distinction to the little drug store in Greensboro, N. C., where they once worked as young pharmacists.

What is still more unusual, each of these men—William Sidney Porter and Lunsford Richardson—was to win the friendship of millions under a name not his own.

He was followed at the drug counter by Lunsford Richardson—

O. Henry

The story of these two men and the little Greensboro drug store has especial interest for local people right now. Families in this vicinity are receiving, direct from Greensboro, trial packages of colds-control aids bearing the name "Vicks," which Lunsford Richardson made as world-famous in his way as William Sidney Porter made the name "O Henry."

"O. Henry—Apothecary"

The Gay Nineties were just around the corner when Will Porter started working in his uncle's drug store. He was a reticent youth, but he had extraordinary skill as a cartoonist. Rather than ask customers their names, he draws their pictures. His uncle, always recognizing the likenesses, charged their purchases on the account books.

Before long, Will's kindly wit and personal magnetism, together with his skill as a chess player, made Dr. Porter's drug store the social center of the town—the only "club" the young people had.

When O. Henry left Dr. Porter's Drug Store for his career of travel and adventure, his place was taken by Lunsford Richardson, who was to make almost as romantic an achievement in the field of business.

Although Lunsford Richardson—like O. Henry—simply started "behind the counter" at the old Dr. Porter Drug Store, he was later to own this business and actively manage it for 17 years.

Unlike O. Henry, he had received a thorough education in chemistry and pharmacy. He loved his profession, and studied it long hours after his store was closed. It was only natural that he should have gone on to success in the field of pharmacy.

The Romance of a Business

As Lunsford Richardson carefully compounded prescriptions for his customers, he learned their problems as only a retail druggist can. He established there a sense of service to humanity in trouble that was the guiding principle of his career. He knew, by actual daily contact with people, the needs that those prescriptions were designed to fill.

It is small wonder that as the years passed, his skill as a pharmacist and chemist should have been embodied in simple, time tested formulas that gradually extended his fame beyond his friends and neighbors. Soon through the mountains of western North Carolina were being distributed the first blue jars of Vicks VapoRub—a preparation that has since become known throughout the world as the leading home treatment for the common cold.

FORECLOSURES OF PROPERTY TO BE FACED

Menlo Park Council Will Take Action To Collect Taxes

(Special to The Tribune)

MENLO PARK, Nov. 13—Owners of Menlo Park property on which taxes have fallen delinquent face foreclosure or tax sale of their holdings in the near future, as the city council recorded itself favorable to cleaning up the delinquencies last night.

The council withheld action however, until an expression of the people's opinion could be heard at the next regular business session, November 26, which will be thrown open to hear property owners' grievances.

E. M. Ranking, real estate operator, touched off the spark that led to a solid hour's argument, by appearing before the council and "insisting" that action against the delinquents, some of which have been so since 1930, be taken. Most of the administrators were in agreement with Rankin who declared that continued pampering of the delinquent property owners results in "the majority bearing the burden of the few."

Only Councilman Irving Dunn pleaded that foreclosure was a hazardous undertaking, and might be financially unprofitable to the city as well as a violation of humanitarian ideals. He held out for the public hearing; after that time, the delinquents must be given final notice, and the first action will be brought against those in arrears for four or five years.

Whether the procedure will be brought through foreclosures or tax sales is a decision that the council apparently hopes City Attorney James T. O'Keefe Jr., will settle. Both methods are applicable.

Lodi High School Beats S. M., 45-12

(Special to The Tribune)

SAN MATEO, Nov. 12—San Mateo High school's football team was beaten 12-45 yesterday at Lodi by the Lodi High school squad.

Lodi was leading 19-0 at half time but the San Mateo county team scored twice in the third quarter to threaten the home team's lead. Lodi closed with a rush, however, to pile up four touchdowns late in the game.

Dance Assures Legion Service Award Success

So successful was the American Legion's Armistice dance at Belmont that assurance has been given the veterans' plan to present an outstanding Redwood City citizen with a community service award early next year may be carried through to completion, Comm. C. M. Becker declared today.

"The 16th annual Armistice dance was such a success financially that the people of the community have made it possible to carry out our program of the American Legion Community Award to be presented in the early part of 1936 to some deserving citizen who has accomplished some community service and has not done it for personal gain but for the good of the community," Becker said.

"The award committee wishes to thank the patrons at the dance the merchants and the press for support of the dance."

Shortly after January 1 a committee will consider nominations for the award. The plan is similar to one in effect in Burlingame, sponsored there by a service club and newspaper.

COASTSIDERS DOUBT BODIES CAN BE FOUND

Search Is Continuing However, for Trio Swept Into Sea

(Special to The Tribune)

PEDRO POINT, Nov. 12.—Although old timers here doubted bodies of the three fishermen who were swept from a rock into the ocean during a high tide Sunday ever would be found, sheriff's deputies and coast guardsmen continued their search today in the hope some trace of the sea's victims could be located.

"Of the 10 or 12 men I have known to have been swept into the sea here since I've been on the coast, not one body has ever been found," said one resident.

Ironically enough, it was learned today several hundred Sunday picnickers were within a half mile of Harry L. Stancil, 40; Charles F. Sayre, 15, his step-son, and Anton A. Arms, 50, when they were plunged into the sea, but none knew of their disappearance until Stancil's son, Joseph, 9, and his father-in-law, Elijah Eylers, reported the trio had not returned after going to the rock to fish Sunday morning.

It had been the custom of the party to fish from a particular rock nearly a half mile from the shore. They reached the rock by means of a cable which Stancil himself had built several years ago, and from which hung a "flying Dutchman," which they rode to the rock.

Stancil had cheated death more than a year ago when he was washed off his fishing rock. At the time he swam nearly a mile out to sea, then in to a beach to keep from being dashed on the rocks.

Residents believe bodies of the three men have become entangled in sea weed and never will be found, or that they have washed into some mysterious cave beneath the rocks which had hidden bodies of other men who have lost their lives on the rockbound coast.

SAN BRUNAN SUCCUMBS

(Special to The Tribune)

SAN BRUNO, Nov. 12—Richard W. Wheeler, son of Mrs. Bridget Wheeler and brother of William Wheeler, Eileen F. Peterson, Kathleen Anderson and Frances O'Brien, died here yesterday. Rites will be held at the Suhr & Wiebolt parlors in San Francisco, his native city.

Mrs. Wienke, S. M. Pioneer, Passes Here

Mrs. George Kneese's Mother Had Helped Develop Coast

After living in San Mateo county 54 years, Mrs. Meta Anna Wienke, 88, mother of Mrs. George A. Kneese, former county clerk, died at her daughter's home here at 9 a.m. Tuesday.

Her death closed a life which began in Hannover, Germany, in 1847 and later became closely connected with much that is now history in this county.

Mrs. Wienke married J. F. Wienke in San Francisco, where she had come after leaving Germany in 1871, and the pair moved to the Half Moon Bay Colony Tract (now Moss Beach) in 1881.

There they ran the famous Moss Beach Hotel, frequented by many peninsula pioneers including Stanford University's early president, David Starr Jordan, who often spent summers at the Wienke's resort.

They ran the hotel until the Ocean Shore Railroad was built and then gave up the business in 1908, but continued to live on the coastside.

Mrs. Wienke did not come to live with her daughter, wife of the former county surveyor, at 35 Hudson street, until 1920 when Mr. Wienke passed on. Mrs. Kneese is her only survivor.

BINGO AGAIN WINS NOTICE OF JURY HERE

Marshall Tells Plans For Road Districts During Session

Turning back once again to its inquiry into bingo, San Mateo county's grand jury Tuesday, in a surprise move, requestioned Henry Weinberg, "payoff man" who was fined $100 after he pleaded guilty to lottery charges, and announced at the finish of its meeting that it was far from being through with its probe of the "pastime."

Jurors still hope to question Ike Sernstein, manager of the now closed Bayshore City palace, they said after the meeting. Bernstein, who through Attorney George E. Harris of San Francisco paid $250 along with Weinberg and two other operators, still is ill in Los Angeles, jurors were told.

When he is able to return to this county, he will be quizzed by jurors in their attempt to learn who or what was behind the move to bring the gambling game into this county, the jury's press committee said.

SIX POINTS CONSIDERED

The jury in its three-hour meeting also:

1. Decided to make no recommendation to the supervisors in regard to filling the justice of the peace post in San Mateo, left vacant by death of Richard E. O'Farrell. Earlier in the day the jury had asked the board not to appoint a successor until the inquisitors had had time to consider the matter, but at their meeting the jurors decided the situation was outside their jurisdiction.

2. Heard Engineer Urban S. Marshall explain his new county set-up, which has three road districts with headquarters at Colma, Half Moon Bay and Redwood City, and heard of Marshall's plans to put relief cases to work rapidly on WPA projects.

3. Referred to the law enforcement committee, headed by A. J. Ward, the fact San Mateo county said preliminary investigation had must bear expense of prosecuting escaped prisoners from San Francisco's jail near San Bruno. Ward disclosed that the coming state legislature might have to make provision for the county's being reimbursed, as is Marin county for handling San Quentin prisoner trials.

4. Determined to press to a conclusion investigation of gambling in the county, and in this connection decided to invite Sheriff James J. McGrath to appear at the next meeting next Tuesday.

5. Hinted that indictments might yet be returned before the gambling inquiry is concluded, but, through one member, said that "no other situation seems serious enough to warrant indictments."

6. Reiterated intention to investigate all county offices, naming the county executive position as one to be probed in the near future.

Mrs. Stanford's Aide Badly Hurt in S. F.

Found crumpled on the pavement at Powell and O'Farrell streets early Tuesday in San Francisco suffering scalp injuries, Miss Bertha Berner, 70, of Menlo Park, one-time private secretary and confidante to Mrs. Leland Stanford, was given Central Emergency Hospital treatment and then returned home. It is believed she was struck by a car or fainted.

Miss Berner had gone to San Francisco yesterday morning, registering at a down town hotel.

She has been living in retirement at Menlo Park with her brother, August, since the death of Mrs. Stanford in her arms in Honolulu nearly three decades ago.

Only a few weeks ago Miss Berner's book was published, disclosing for the first time the mysterious circumstances under which Mrs. Stanford died, convinced she had been poisoned.

EX-SEQUOIAN DIES IN S. F. OF ILLNESS

Charles Van Orden, 18, Was Famed for Feats In Tank and Turf

An ailment from which he had suffered for the past five years proved fatal to Charles H. Van Orden, 18-year-old Menlo Junior College student and Sequoia high school graduate, when he died in Stanford Hospital Tuesday afternoon.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard L. Van Orden of 282 Edgewood road and identical twin of Howard L. Jr., Menlo student, young Van Orden was popular and well-known during the three years he attended the local school. After his graduation in June of 1933, he entered the Menlo school and attended classes until six weeks ago when he was taken seriously ill.

Born in San Francisco, the youth was prominent in school there, and in junior high school carved a niche in the hall of athletic fame by outstanding feats in swimming, basketball and football. In 1930 the family moved to Redwood City for the boy's health. His illness prevented him from participating in inter-school athletics here, although he did considerable swimming and held a school record.

The youth was a grandson of the late Charles H. Van Orden, printer and publisher of San Francisco and one of the founders of the printing firm of Phillips and Van Orden, of which the bereaved father is now a partner. The boy also was a nephew of Mrs. Hugh McKevitt, wife of the San Francisco attorney.

Other relatives include his grandmother, Mrs. Louise Van Orden of San Francisco, and his maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Behlmer, San Francisco.

Private funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at the Halsted and Company chapel, 1123 Sutter street, San Francisco. Until 1 p.m. friends may call at the parlors.

FOUR CAMPAIGN ISSUES DEFINED

Alonzo Baker Hands New Deal Rebuff In Talk Here

Four issues the United States must face in its next presidential campaign, and how he thinks they will be met, were told to the Menokirk and Methodist Men's Clubs last night at the Methodist church by Alonzo L. Baker, Mountain View editor and speaker, in a talk, "The Outlook for 1936."

Problems to be faced, in Baker's opinion, are (1) the question of sharing the wealth, as advocated by the late Huey Long and others; (2) the theory that wealth can be produced by the creation of a scarcity; (3) the idea that the country can spend itself rich, and (4) control of business by the government.

Dealing with the problems in more or less of a facetious manner, Baker pointed out fallacies as seen by him in theories of President Roosevelt and the New Deal.

CITES FORD EXAMPLE

Citing the difficulty of dividing large fortunes, such as that built up by Henry Ford, Baker declared the idea of wealth sharing, while attractive because of an enticing phrase, was impossible.

Using Ford as an illustration again, he showed where mass production wtih consequent low prices resulted in riches, and asserted the "let's have less and we'll have more" theory is false.

"The old law of supply and demand can't be beaten," he maintained.

What he called the new philosophy to "spend more than you have and you'll have more" he branded as entirely false, and traced it, as he had the preceding three, back to Karl Marx. He also declared that "borrowing on the future inevitably leads to inflation."

"Nine out of 10 economists today say that continued borrowing will produce inflation, and every inflation has resulted in deflation," he warned.

CONSTITUTION CHANGES?

Control of business by government, or regimentation, could be accomplished only by changes in the constitution.

Recognizing the constitution has been changed a number of times, Baker pointed out that none of the amendments has altered the general idea of a tri-partite government consisting of legislative, judicial and executive branches.

If Roosevelt is re-elected, and Baker thinks he has an excellent chance to be, he looks for a constitutional amendment proposal to follow soon which will (1) permit intra-state commerce regulation by the federal government, (2) shear the supreme court of its power, or (3) give more power to the executive branch of the government.

He cited difficulties to be encountered if the supreme court should be abolished and congress allowed to become the supreme power of the land.

"We would then never know where we were," he averred.

In closing, Baker pleaded for "better thinking" on the part of voters, declaring he believed the coming election was the most crucial in the history of America.

President Claude Altman presided over the meeting, which was attended by approximately 40 men of local protestant churches.

Throughout both days, many items will be on sale in the church social rooms.

INSTITUTE IS SET FOR TEACHERS

Principal, Instructor To Give Addresses During Week

"While the mice are away the cats go to work."

While Sequoia students are on their Thanksgiving vacation November 25 to December 2, the high school's faculty members will take their turn at sitting at school desks and being taught things.

November 25, 26 and 27 are the days state teachers must attend institute.

Clarence Argo, principal, and Mrs. Eyla Wooldridge, head of the English department, will be speakers at educational meetings during institute week.

Argo will address heads of departments of San Francisco schools and members of the research section of the West Bay schools November 27 in San Francisco. His subject will be "Sequoia Union High School's Curriculum."

Mrs. Wooldridge will speak at an institute gathering in Monterey.

The county schools' institute instruction will be given at Sequoia Monday, November 25. The teachers go to San Francisco for the other two days' work.

Judge Appointee Delayed By Beer At Jury Request

Appointment of a successor to the late Richard E. O'Farrell, San Mateo justice of the peace who was killed in an automobile accident November 6, was delayed by the board of supervisors Tuesday at the request of the San Mateo County Grand Jury.

The jury asked an opportunity to study the office and to make a recommendation.

It is believed that the jury will suggest the consolidation of the San Mateo police judgship with the justice of the peace so as to reduce the cost of the two offices as is done in Redwood City. It is also believed possible that the jury will recommend appointment of an attorney to fill the office. It will not support any particular candidate.

Seeking the office are William O'Farrell, brother of the late judge; Robert A. Higgins, Hugh Mullin Jr., Louis E. Rice, Bernard Sharon and others.

Supervisor Fred Beer will make the recommendation to the board as to the appointee.

Theatre Rebuilding Nearly Completed

SAN MATEO, Nov. 13—A major portion of the reconstruction work on the San Mateo theater, gutted by fire in July, 1934, has been completed, it was learned today at the local chamber of commerce.

The re-opening of the theater will be Christmas day.

All work on the interior has been completed except pouring of the concrete floor and installation of seats.

Fair Oaks Sewer Needs Referred For WPA Notice

Problems of the North Fair Oaks sewer district in the matter of connections required in order to meet demands of health authorities were referred to WPA Coordinator William Hendricks by the board of supervisors Tuesday.

The matter was brought to the board's attention by application of W. R. Trader, Alice Grundy and Nadine Joukoff to connect with the sewer. They offered to put in the line at their expense provided that later they would get back part of the cost when others connect with it.

Assistant District Attorney Daniel Sullivan said the whole sewer project needed study as it was likely that connections with the Menlo Park system would be necessary to get the proper flow.

MONTARA SEWER HEARING

At the request of the Montara Chamber of Commerce, the board today set a hearing for November 25 at 10 a. m. at Redwood City on the proposed formation of a sewer maintenance district. The system will be put in shape by WPA funds.

County Engineer Urban Marshall told the board that legal and engineering assistance will be given by WPA. The matter was referred to Marshall to work out.

Twenty tables of whist were played by those who did not desire to dance. Receipts will go into the post's general fund for the present.

Third Fire Menaces Coast Barber Shop

HALF MOON BAY, Nov. 13.—A move to have new heating equipment put in C. W. Brown's barber shop was under way today following the third fire of recent months in the building early Tuesday morning. Volunteer firemen fortunately extinguished the flames before they had spread to other stores in the block.

The fire broke out only a few minutes after the firemen had successfully fought a brush and grass fire in the southern section of the town.

LOCAL EDUCATOR TELLS MEANING

Challenge of Changed Democracy Met By Schools

[EDITOR'S NOTE: In connection with American Education Week, which started today, The Tribune will present a series of statements by Redwood City educators on purposes and meanings of the week. This is the first.]

By FRED W. BLASE
Sequoia High School Teacher

This decade of the twentieth century finds us in a period of continuous and rapid changes. These changes are due primarily to the advance of the machine and power age. Transitions that come with such incredible speed produce strains and stresses, particularly when they play upon social beliefs, moral ideas, and political and legal institutions which go back to an earlier and simpler civilization. Here is the secret of the perplexing problems which confront and bewilder us.

It is a great tribute to the American school that our people should turn to the educational system for aid. As we are torn and divided over whether to move to the right or to the left, there seems to be a feeling that our schools will be the great stabilizing factor.

Education is the steering gear of democracy, and it seems to be rather generally accepted that in this country with its republican institutions the democratic approach is the best for the solution of our problems.

Democracy has to be born anew every generation, says our great American educator and philosopher, John Dewey.

The democracy of today must concern itself seriously with such problems as minimum standards of life, housing, health, leisure time and recreation, the stabilization of employment, industrial security, and various types of social insurance.

The schools stand in a position to make constructive contributions to the solution of these complexities.

Can this generation strike a happy balance between the value of individual initiative and social control? Can we preserve the great heritage of political democracy and at the same time insure a more efficient government?

Here is the testing of American democracy, and our schools are doing their utmost to meet the challenge successfully.

SINGLE LIGHT DISTRICT GOAL OVER COUNTY

Voters May Be Asked To Wipe Out Many Smaller Units

Wiping out of all small lighting districts and incorporation of the units in a county-wide district was proposed Tuesday by Supervisor Albert Witt Jr., Colma, to bring about substantial savings for electricity in rural areas.

Witt first directed that County Executive Walter Kellogg confer with Pacific Gas and Electric Co. officials to reduce lighting charges in the rural areas as has been done for the cities.

If this is not achieved, he then urged that Kellogg confer with District Attorney Gilbert Ferrell to learn how the districts can legally be terminated and one county-wide district be formed. It was the opinion of Assistant District Attorney Daniel Sullivan that this would require a vote by the people who form the district.

Witt's purpose is to secure franchise taxes from the P. G. and E. He said that San Mateo county is the only one in the state which is not benefiting from the franchise tax.

Bid of the P. G. and E. for lighting in Belmont was accepted.

FIESTA FUNDS VOTED

The board voted $3812 from the unbudgetted reserve to meet the deficit on the first annual San Mateo County Floral Fiesta.

Purchase of another car at $692 to assist the social service department in contacting old age pension applicants was ordered.

Claims of Emma Cockrell for $5,010 and Thomas Bishop for $25,215 for injuries sustained at Sonora in a collision with a car of former Treasurer Harry Jenkins were rejected by the board.

Changes in election precincts as made by County Clerk Elmore B. Hinman to affect substantial savings in voting costs were approved by the board.

Use of the traffic bureau in the basement of the courthouse for the social service commission when vacated was approved.

Approval for the county to stand half of the $6698 expense on the Woodside road work unit C was given.

Claims of $413.90 for refund of taxes on property used by public utilities were allowed and $644.79 were rejected on the advice of Assessor Daniel P. Flynn. The board approved claims of Annie Plymire and Joseph L. Ross in Redwood City, and rejected the application of the Bank of America at Half Moon Bay.

Brother Explains Judge's Movements

(Special to The Tribune)

SAN MATEO, Nov. 13.—Further light was shed here today on the mysterious actions of Justice Richard E. O'Farrell, 31, which led to his death last Wednesday when his machine struck a truck on San Mateo-Hayward bay bridge.

The late judge's brother, William, a candidate for the vacant post, disclosed at a coroner's inquest that Richard had left early in the morning to confer with a client in Stockton because he had to return by noon to San Mateo to address the Lions Club.

The jury determined that Judge O'Farrell's death was accidental, resulting from a fractured skull.

The jury also determined that deaths of Rudolph Vieri, 48, Belmont, and Alexander McGregor, 67, of Burlingame, were natural.

Theatre Aide, Girl Hurt in Auto Crash

Lloyd Howell, assistant manager of the Sequoia theater, and his companion, Miss Mildred Anderson of San Mateo, were shaken up Tuesday when the car in which they were driving was struck by an allegedly stolen machine driven by Roy Velarde, 37, of 915 Fifth avenue, San Mateo, according to a report made today by Patrolman Lloyd Minehan.

Holdup Suspects Held In San Diego, Oregon

In cities far apart, police have arrested three men believed to be perpetrators of the Saturday night and Sunday holdup and robbery series in San Mateo county and San Francisco.

Two, Howard Gregory and Bob Gaunt, were nabbed at Klamath Falls, Ore., while the third, Fred Vasques, was seized on a bus at San Diego.

Dispute With Train May Cost Man Life

(Special to The Tribune)

SOUTH SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 13.—Disputing the right-of-way of a Southern Pacific locomotive may cost Ray Leon Carter, 40, Tanforan race track employe, his life.

Carter, according to Chief of Police Louis Belloni, drove his car along the railroad tracks a quarter mile south of the South San Francisco underpass and was struck last night by a local train which demolished the car and gave Carter injuries from which he may not recover.

His condition includs a badly fractured skull and broken ribs. He was taken to South San Francisco Hospital.

The engineer of the train, J. R. Fleck, told police he did not see Carter until too late to stop.

Belloni disclosed that police investigation showed that Carter had driven nearly 1,300 feet along the tracks and then apparently had parked and gone asleep.

At the hospital physicians reported the injured man had an alcoholic breath.

Carter's home address is National City, San Diego county.

DRUNK DRIVING BRINGS WARNING

Clues to Intoxication Given in Bulletin To Patrolmen

A rolling gait, glazed eyes, thick speech and superiority complex are not the only indications of intoxication, according to a Sacramento bulletin announced today by Captain Paul Perussina of the state highway patrol.

In a recent release from the state department of motor vehicles state highway patrolmen are given the following clues to aid them in identifying the drunken driver:

"If intoxication has so far affected the nervous system, brain or muscles of the driver of an automobile as to impair, to an appreciable degree, his ability to operate his car in the manner that an ordinary prudent and cautious man in the possession of his faculties, using reasonable care, would operate or drive a vehicle under like conditions, then such driver is under the influence of intoxicating liquor."

Penalties for drunken driving remain severe. For simple driving while intoxicated—a misdemeanor—fines range from $50 to $500 with a possible county jail sentence of 30 days.

A second violation brings a fine of $200 to $1000, or jail sentence and in the event someone is injured in a crash where the driver is intoxicated, punishment of 90 days to a year in prison and a fine of from $200 to $5000 may be levied.

The United States is now connected by telephone with 40 foreign nations. In this gigantic hookup, the American telephone user is in contact with 32,750,000 telephones, or 92 per cent of the world's total.
